"First and foremost practicality. Then versatility, attention to detail, the best Italian material and an ever-so British quirkiness in the choice of colours. These are the basic ingredients." reflects Melissa Del Bono who designs bags with sculptural yet unstructured shapes, sophisticated and feminine without being flashy or twee.

"I've always used very big or very small bags, the Big Beach Bag is an elegant shopper with inverted handles that it is revolutionizing the way you carry the bag."

"The name of my label? It means "tangled hair" in French or Spanish," reveals Melissa "it's always been my nickname".

Melissa Del Bono

Italian-born Melissa Del Bono lived in Lipari in the Aeolian Islands before uprooting to London to create her line, to which she has given her nickname. Del Bono looks to the decadent beach lifestyle led by Brigitte Bardot in the sixties for the line's signature B.B. bag, which comes in colourful, supple leather. VOGUE Magazine

What started out as simply a hobby in order to satisfy her own needs and tastes, Melissa's bags immediately gained a critical acclaim from the fashion industry appearing on the coveted pages of style bibles such as Vogue, Harpers Bazaar and Elle.

Melissa's inspiration is drawn from a pool of Anglo-Italian roots, international travel, and a passion for everyday life. These, combined with individual flair, an inbuilt knack for style, and a policy of using only premium Italian leather guarantees each bag bares charm, versatility, and character and all the other ingredients to satisfy every woman's bag fetish. The simplicity of the bag is the key.
